Beyond Yield: Precision Agriculture and Farm Profitability in Ukraine Under Export Constraints

By Ukraine Country Representative Yaroslav Boyko

For decades, crop yield has been one of the primary measures of efficiency in agricultural production. Under increasingly volatile market conditions, however, high yield alone no longer guarantees high profitability.

For Ukraine in 2026, this issue has become particularly important. Disruptions to export logistics, higher transportation costs, and declining domestic commodity prices have significantly changed farm-level economics.

As a result, the key performance indicator is increasingly shifting from maximum yield per hectare toward the economic return generated by each hectare and each unit of input invested.

Preliminary Digital Agriculture Survey

ISPA is developing a Digital Agriculture definition and we would like to hear from our ISPA membership currently working in Digitial Ag or expecting to do so. This survey will inform the definition committee. We split this into four broad questions:

a. Where, within food systems, do you operate?
b. What technologies do you consider most important? (We suggest four classes: data collection, control tech, modeling/AI and comms/networking.)
c. How do you believe technology creates value? (We suggest three classes: increased efficiency, better processes, and assett management.)
d. Who do you expect gains value from digitial ag?

ISPA Country Representative - James Jade Lasquites

Country Representatives serve to help promote ISPA by championing the ISPA mission and purpose globally, in particular, in the country they represent. ISPA is growing internationally so Country Representatives remain an important position to help ISPA best serve people, groups, governments and others, globally connecting them to science and experts.

Please join us in thanking ISPA Country Representative from Philippines, James Jade Lasquites.

If you are interested in becoming a Country Representative, please email info@ispag.org with your bio highlighting your experience in precision agriculture and your CV. ISPA requires that all Country Representatives are current members of the society. To become a member, please complete the membership form.

Precision Agriculture Definition

Precision Agriculture is a management strategy that gathers, processes and analyzes temporal, spatial and individual plant and animal data and combines it with other information to support management decisions according to estimated variability for improved resource use efficiency, productivity, quality, profitability and sustainability of agricultural production.

The International Society of Precision Agriculture (ISPA) is a non-profit professional scientific organization.
The mission of ISPA is to advance the science of precision agriculture globally.
