International Crop Modelling Symposium

Dear Colleagues,

We are excited to announce that the next edition of the International Crop Modelling Symposium (iCROPM2026) will take place in Florence, Italy, from February 2 to 4, 2026.

Six years after the last symposium in Montpellier (iCROPM2020), international experts, researchers, agronomists, and policymakers will meet again to discuss the latest innovations and identify new challenges and opportunities in crop modelling to support agricultural production and food security.

All types of crops and cropping systems (arable, grasslands, intercrops) and all regions of the world will be considered, addressing both high- and low-input systems, from large agricultural enterprises to smallholder farmers.

We will be providing more detailed information on the event soon. Stay tuned!
Looking forward to seeing you in Florence!

Sincerely,
Roberto Ferrise
On behalf of the iCROPM2026 Organizing Committee
